WHEREAS, the Jewish Agency is convinced that the dropout phenomenon threatens to destroy the emigration movement;

WHEREAS, the Jewish Agency has decided for Soviet Jews arriving in Vienna —

a) Those who choose to go to Israel will be taken there immediately

c) Those who do not meet either category will not be referred to HIAS and will be on their own.

WHEREAS, the policy of "assisted passage" for all Soviet Jews to any destination has been tried to date and has resulted in a continuous drop in emigration figures (e.g. July — 779, August — 430);

WHEREAS, Soviet emigration policies regarding Soviet Jews presumes repatriation to the Israel homeland and is the Soviet rationale for emigration;

Hadassah-WIZO meets in Ottawa Nov. 15-18

The national capital will be the setting for the 29th Biennial Convention of the Hadassah-WIZO Organization of Canada from November 15 to 18, according to an announcement by National President Mirial Small of Toronto.

Stella Torontow of Ottawa is Convention Chairman, Faye Steinfeld of Montreal is Vice-Chairman. More than 1,000 delegates, alternates and observers, representing over 17,000 women and 1,500 male Life Associates across Canada, will gather at the Skyline Hotel for this Convention, the theme of which is "Today - Tomorrow - Together". The Convention also celebrates the 64th anniversary of the organization.

A number of international figures are scheduled to address the conference: Rabbi Michael Williams, spiritual leader of the Rue Copernic Synagogue in Paris, France, which was bombed last October, is the keynote speaker at the official opening on Sunday, November 15. He has written extensively and addressed international gatherings about the upsurge of antisemitism in France and other parts of Europe.

His Excellency Yeshayahu Anug, Israel's Ambassador to Canada, will also address the opening session.

Mrs. Ruth Izakson of Israel, Chairman of the World WIZO Executive, is featured at the gala WIZO International Evening on Monday, November 16, to which have been invited the presidents of WIZO Federations of other countries.

U.S. Congressman Sam Gjdenson, Democratic Representative from Connecticut's Second Congressional District, is the guest speaker at the closing banquet on Wednesday, November 18. He was born in Germany in 1948 at an American displaced persons camp. The Congressman is a highly articulate and well-informed person who has earned a fine reputation for his liberal record with regard to Jewish and Israeli issues.

Mrs. Brenda Katten, Chairman of British WIZO, leads the kickoff program, Monday morning, November 16, the first business session of Convention.

A special feature of this Convention is a luncheon to which all Members of Parliament have been invited. Delegates will have an opportunity to meet their respective Members of Parliament and to hear guest speaker Dan Pattir,

Mrs. Stella Torontow
Convention Chairman

Israel journalist, broadcaster, foreign correspondent and former media counselor to Prime Ministers Rabin and Begin. Currently, Mr. Pattir is with the American Enterprise Institute in Washington, engaged in a special research project on the peace process between Egypt and Israel.

A key speaker at the 29th Biennial Convention will be Dr. Reuven Feuerstein, Director of the Canadian Hadassah-WIZO Research Institute of Jerusalem. Dr. Feuerstein is a psychologist and educator, world-renowned for his development of a successful method of teaching children who were previously considered uneducable which is described in his published words, The Dynamic Assessment of Retarded Performers and Instrumental Enrichment.

A significant adjunct to the Convention will be an all-day Professional Seminar, which will be conducted by Dr. Feuerstein, for educators and psychologists. It is being organized by Dr. Douglas K. Griffin, Chief of Academic Education, The Correctional Service of Canada. Attending, among others, will be Minister of Development of Intelligence of Venezuela, Luis Alberto Machado, and Professor Carl Haywood, Director of the John F. Kennedy Center for Research on Education and Human Development, Nashville, Tennessee. As well as participating in the Professional Seminar, they will also address the delegates at an evening plenary session on Youth Aliyah on Tuesday, November 17. Yitzchak Mayer, Israel Consul General in Montreal, is the guest speaker that evening.

A special event at the Convention will be the presentation of the "Canadian Award" to the Hon. Flora MacDonald, M.P.

Recognizing the enormous contribution of its volunteers to the Organization and to the community, Canadian Hadassah-WIZO has planned a series of six "Personal Development Seminars" to take place each morning during the Convention. Some of the topics will be "Passages — Where am I now? Where am I going"; "S & Sense" — giving guidelines on management of personal finances; "Coping With Stress"; plus seminars on public speaking and on an examination of Jewish identity.

One of the plenary sessions will feature a "Fund-Raising Seminar", presenting Libbie Reisen, a highly qualified expert in that field and Arthur Drache, an authority on taxation.

Plans for the entertainment of the delegates include city tours, a hospitality room with boutiques featuring gift items made by students at Canadian Hadassah-WIZO schools in Israel, exhibit and sale of Israeli art and "dancercise" each morning.

Meeting with the Ottawa Citizen

In pursuance of the resolution passed at our Annual Meeting on June 24 last and our subsequent request for a meeting with the publisher and editor of the Citizen to express our concerns, Hy Hochberg, Dr. Eli Rabin, Robert Willmot and I met with the Editorial Board of the Citizen on September 21.

After we introduced the subject of our concerns and read the community's resolution, those present were presented with a brief and supporting documentation which had been prepared beforehand. This was followed by a lively meeting, with a good deal of back and forth discussion which lasted approximately two hours. Virtually the entire Editorial Board of the Citizen, comprising some ten members, was in attendance and we received a good hearing. It would appear that the Citizen views our community's concerns with some seriousness.

The brief which was submitted is an excellent one, is most informative and will be made available to the members of our Board of Trustees and any others upon request. At this time, I would like to express my thanks to our Community Relations Committee and in particular to Robert Willmot who spent many hours in the compilation and preparation of the brief and materials used in our submission.

Commentary by Cynthia Engel Editor

As he had long suspected it might, the life of Anwar Sadat, President of Egypt, came to an abrupt and untimely end with a shot heard, and felt, around the world.

Eleven years ago when his predecessor Gamal Abdel Nasser died, Israel and diaspora Jews awaited his successor with great trepidation. For, although Nasser was no friend to the State of Israel, the prevailing feeling was, "Better the Devil we know, than the Devil we don't know."

But the devil we didn't know in time proved to be more angel than devil. He proved to be a man of conviction and great courage, and he won our wholehearted admiration.

For Anwar Sadat, leader of the largest Arab nation in the world, dared to do the unthinkable: he acknowledged the existence of the tiny State of Israel.

And initiated a dialogue with Israel.

And kept the lines of communication between Israel and Egypt open. And humming.

And tried to find a peace acceptable to his people. And to ours.

Was there an ulterior method to his madness? We shall never know. What we do know is that the man, Anwar Sadat, in taking those monumental first steps, laid his very life on the line. And in so doing, carved himself a place of honour forever into our memories.

Who can ever forget the sight of the great silver plane, emblazoned with Egyptian markings, streaking out of the sky, down and down, to come to rest at last at the end of the runway at Ben Gurion Airport, there to discharge its most incredible passenger?

Or the static of the moment when Sadat — the mettle of the man evident on his chiselled features — descended, straight-backed and sure-footed from the aircraft until finally the President of the Land of Egypt was actually standing on Israeli soil, grasping the hand extended to him in welcome. The hand of Menachem Begin, Prime Minister of Israel.

Or the speeches of goodwill and good intention made by both parties to the event. Speeches full of promise, couched in caution.

And the "chane" of the indomitable Golda Meir, injecting a note of levity and hominess into the sober occasion with the timely presentation of a gift to the new grandfather.

The whole world revelled in the news of the Camp David Accord, and marvelled at the triumvirate of great world leaders — having arbitrated and agreed, niggled and negotiated — stood before television cameras and affixed their signatures to the first documents of a tentative peace.

It was a time of splendour in Middle East history, and the beginning of great changes. And being the instigator, Anwar Sadat became a marked man. And he knew it. And he did it anyway.

An assassin's bullet has stilled the voice that so distinctly intoned "Eez-raw-ay!", and stopped the hands that signed the Israeli-Egyptian promise for peace.

But the greatness and strength of the man Anwar Sadat, lives on. And, incredibly, Jews everywhere mourn the passing of a centuries-old enemy. As a friend.

Update 3

Project Renewal — Or Yehuda

By Harvey Lithwick

In this update, I should like to give you a recent analysis of the community of Or Yehuda that was prepared for our committee by our Israeli advisor, Dr. Amnon Shinar. It provides a concise overview of the social, environmental and economic difficulties facing the city, and the particular challenges confronting "our" target area, Shechunah Bet.

Background

Or Yehuda is an urban settlement within the metropolitan area of Tel Aviv. It has a population of approximately 20,000 people, in comparison to the metropolitan area's population of one million.

In 1949, groups of immigrants came from Turkey and N. Africa and settled in abandoned Arab houses in the area of what is now Or Yehuda. The place was in very poor condition. Tents and tin huts were constructed to accommodate the newcomers. There was little water, no roads and due to the topographical character of the area, there was much flooding.

The government intended to disperse the residents throughout other settlements, and there was no effort to encourage the development of Or Yehuda. The plan was to replace the residential area with a reservoir, main roads and other national utilities.

Due to its central location, citizens from other migrant camps came to settle in Or Yehuda. The settlement began to grow, and in 1955, the Ministry of the Interior appointed a municipal council in Or Yehuda. The settlement began to receive services such as electricity, roads, public transportation, etc. The first real buildings were finally constructed. Houses were built with the good intention of providing sound housing for the tent and hut dwellers. They built houses, but they did not build a town.

The government was concerned with helping the citizens to progress and to improve their living conditions. The citizens, however, were not ready to accept change, and valued tent living and open space. This caused many social problems, in addition to the physical ones already in existence.

For many years, a process of negative selection has taken place in Or Yehuda. The more socially and economically fit people left Or Yehuda for other parts of the metropolitan region. At the same time, criminal elements found refuge within this neglected town. The social problems of Or Yehuda today, are to a great extent a result of this negative selection process. Most of the present population is at a low socio-economic level.

The municipality made an effort to reverse Or Yehuda's negative image through an emphasis on the quality of education, the development of youth clubs, the rehabilitation of juvenile delinquents and the dispersal of problematic families in the outlying areas of the community. The influence of these efforts has been positive.

Today Or Yehuda is a long narrow settlement. The neighborhoods at the far end of this banana-shaped settlement are closer to the center of neighboring towns than to the center of Or Yehuda. This situation reinforces the underdeveloped condition of Or Yehuda's commercial center. It seems that a large part of the population's consumer power finds its way to other business districts within the metropolitan region.

Or Yehuda's position as part of a large metropolitan system greatly influences its present situation and its future development:

1) Tel Aviv's entire metropolitan area is available to the workforce of Or Yehuda. The opportunities for finding work are more varied than they would be if Or Yehuda were an isolated town.

2) Or Yehuda is close to many towns and cities with middle and upper-class populations. Therefore, it is relatively easy to recruit highly qualified professionals to fill community service positions in Or Yehuda. The determining factor is that of funds rather than the availability of professionals. The difficulty of finding qualified professionals does not exist here, as in other urban renewal neighborhoods.

3) There is little physical distance between the deprived town of Or Yehuda and more successful towns such as Savoyon and Ramat Gan. This causes the people of Or Yehuda to be more sensitive to the poor condition of their town.

Community of Or Yehuda

For many years, the majority of the population in Or Yehuda was apathetic towards the problems and conditions of their town. The population consists mainly of traditional people that went through the double crisis of transferring from an old country to a new country and from a traditional eastern culture to an achievement oriented western culture.

This cultural crisis often brought about the disintegration of family units and social ties. Within such an unstable social situation, criminal subculture flourished.

Recently, however, there have been signs of social changes. People of Or Yehuda, especially the youngsters are concerned about improving the condition of the town.

Shechunah Bet

Shechunah Bet is characterized by many physical problems in housing, environmental neglect, and lack of development of yards and open space.

Neighborhood Bet has a population of six thousand people living in sixteen hundred housing units. The problem in this neighborhood, like all of Or Yehuda, consists of immigrants from Iraq, Libya, and Turkey. In this neighborhood, there is also a large number of newcomers from Georgia (Russia).

Neighborhood Bet is totally lacking in social cohesion. There is no focal point for social meetings and social activities. Physical planning that provides focal points for social interactions could aid in encouraging a community spirit.

In April, 1980, a pre-program for Shechunah Bet was prepared by a team from the Settlement Study Center in Rehovoth.

Problems in Or Yehuda-Shechunah Bet Social Problems

1) Problematic Families — There are many problems within families in Shechunah Bet. The heads of family often lack the ability to carry out their responsibilities as heads of family. Often there are very poor relationships existing between husbands and wives. There is a severe lack of activities in the community for adults and youth which further contributes to the family problems.

2) Idle Youth — There is a severe problem in Or Yehuda concerning the activities of the youth. Due, partially to the lack of activities for them in the afternoons and evenings, there is a lot of vandalism within the community.

3) Health — There are a number of health problems within the community:

A. The mortality rate is very high — 24 per 1000 babies die at birth.

B. The fertility rate is also high, especially among the marginal groups within which giving birth is risky (above 45 years of age and under 19 years of age). Age group 15-19 — 63.59 births per 1000; Age group 45-49 — 12.08 births per 1000.

C. There is a lack of medical specialists.

D. There is a high incidence of improper use of medication, especially among young women.

E. There is a lack of dental care. There is no dental clinic. There is no dental care for children in kindergarten and elementary school.

F. There are problems with drugs, alcoholism and mental illness.

Physical Problems

1) Apartments — All the apartments in Shechunah Bet are smaller than 70 sq. meters (630 sq. feet).

2) Lack of open space — There is a severe lack of open space in Or Yehuda. The open spaces that do exist are not in satisfactory condition.

3) Condition of town center — The physical appearance of the town center and the conditions of the buildings are very poor.

Neglected Blessings

by Rabbi Sanford T. Marcus

Temple Israel

There is an expression that is used when we obtain something easily: "It's like Manna from Heaven." In the Torah we read that God fed the starving Israelites as they trudged through the barren wilderness of Sinai, with a white substance that fell like dew upon the ground. The itinerant Israelites simply had to gather it. They could raise no crops while they were in transit. They may have built Sukkas in which to dwell, but certainly did not have fruits and vegetables to use in decoration. And since dry desert climatic conditions prevailed, there were no wild berries or vegetables to gather.

The people were entirely dependent on God for the Manna. It was white like coriander seed, and could be made into various kinds of breads and cakes.

A Midrash attributes to Manna the flavour of every conceivable kind of food. All the Israelites had to do while eating it was to wish for a certain dish, and the Manna would acquire that very taste. Actually it was rather bland, but surely it kept the people healthy and very much alive. For that they should have been quite grateful.

One of our baser qualities, however, is that human beings are never satisfied. So the people murmured against Moses: "If only we had meat to eat!" They longed for foods that were enjoyed in Egypt, which were lacking in the wilderness. Interestingly only the exotic flavours lingered in memory. What foods were lacking to the palate that were available in Egypt? Cucumbers, melons, leeks, onions, and garlic — food items that are luxuries, without which we can get along just fine. And for this they were actually contemplating a return to enslavement?

The Israelites who yearned for putrid meat over and beyond the plentiful Manna were short sighted and suffered for yielding to their unbridled cravings. Who can't live without leeks, onions and garlic? What Chutzpah to wield in assailing the free falling Manna, the staff of life.

The problem with the Israelites was that they were not used to taking responsibility for themselves. Their mentality was still that of a band of slaves. They had not yet learned to live in freedom and to reap the rewards of their own effort. "Gimme" is all they could say. Perhaps that is why they had to wander for forty years in the wilderness. Time was required to ripen and mature and get used to freedom and independence. As the people persisted in their clamor for flesh, Moses let them whet their appetites in eating diseased meat, a flock of quails that seemed to drop out of the skies into the Israelite camp. As a consequence of their insatiable appetite, many of them died.

Were it not for this wilderness testing period there could not have arisen an Israelite nation — a people fiercely independent, who, with God's help, would summon up their own resources to survive for thousands of years. God provides support when we call upon Him, but He makes us search ourselves for every shred of self-assistance.

When Moses asked God: "What can I do about this murmuring people, they are too much for me?" he was advised to relieve himself of some of the responsibility and let others share in decision-making.

The Sukkah is a visual reminder of the basic necessities with which God has provided us. Let us not take for granted health, sufficient food to eat, and a decent and safe home in which to dwell. The grass may appear to be greener elsewhere, but we should not overlook the blessings already ours.

Prominent Israeli scientist to lecture

One of the world's most eminent plant geneticists, Professor Moshe Feldman, Director of the Dobrin Center for Nutrition & Plant Research at the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovot, Israel, will speak here Thursday, October 29, in the Auditorium of Colonel By Hall, University of Ottawa.

Professor Feldman was recently received by the Minister of Agriculture in Egypt, conferring with fellow scientists on the new developments being pioneered in Rehovot to improve nutritional conditions in those critical areas of the world where hunger is the most serious concern of our times.

The evening, co-sponsored by the Ottawa Chapter of the Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science and the University of Ottawa, will deal with "New Strategies for Food Production: Unconventional Genetic Approaches to Wheat Improvement."

During Feldman's visit to Ottawa he will also address scientists at the Department of Agriculture where he will speak on "Utilization of Wild Wheat for Wheat Improvement."

Professor Feldman's lecture tour includes visits to Montreal, Winnipeg and Toronto where he will address audiences within the general and University communities.

Negev Dinner expects 500

Final plans are being completed for the 1981 Negev Dinner in honor of Solicitor General Bob Kaplan. This year's dinner will in addition, be the inaugural function of the 80th Anniversary celebrations of the Jewish National Fund of Canada.

As this 1981 dinner carries a special significance, participants will be attending from all parts of Canada.

Herbert Zagerman, Negev dinner co-ordinator, has confirmed the participation in this tribute evening of Ambassador Yeshayahu Anug, Ambassador of Israel to Canada; Bernard Alexander, Q.C., Chairman of the evening; Alexander (Bobby) Mayers, National Galil Canada Chairman of Jewish National Fund, as well as Dr. Leon Kronitz, Executive Vice-President of the Canadian Zionist Federation and the 80th Anniversary Chairman of Jewish National Fund.

Dr. Kronitz will be making a special 80th Anniversary presentation to Lawrence Freiman, in recognition of the outstanding leadership contribution of his parents, the late Archie and Lillian Freiman. Their efforts to promote the clearance and redemption of Emek Hephher in 1927 culminated in a $1,000,000 contribution from Canadian Jewry — the first large gift ever received by Keren Kayemeth Le'Israel.

Mr. Zagerman announced at press time that reservations for the dinner were almost at the 500 mark.

Proceeds from the dinner will be used to further the development of Galil Canada, JNF's focus for the 80's.

If you are interested in attending, please contact any member of the JNF committee or call the JNF Montreal office on the toll free line, 1-800-361-8459.

A Non-Jew speaks out on behalf of purchasing '81 Israel Bonds

Joan Sutton, a columnist for the Toronto Star was recently named Woman of the Year by the Career Women's Division of State of Israel Bonds in Toronto. Excerpts from her remarks at the dinner in her honour are reprinted below.

"When you read the papers, you would think that the world is divided into Zionists and non-Zionists; Jews and non-Jews; Palestinians and Israelis. I believe that the world is divided into those people who have been to Israel and those who have not.

When you have been to Israel, you are aware of the POLITICS OF GEOGRAPHY... the size of the country and the closeness of the enemy. When people here recommended that Israel concede a mile or two in the interest of peace, they can't visualize that this sacrifice would bring Israel nose-to-nose with the enemy. Another thing you appreciate in visiting Israel is that ISRAEL IS NOT AN ECONOMIC ARGUMENT TO BE DEBATED. Israel exists... Israel is... Israel is one of the most creative places in the world today, and much of the money for that creation comes from Israel Bonds. Everywhere you go, there is architecture in the desert... There is agriculture where nothing was able to grow... There is scientific research going on to help the entire world. Israel is truly a miracle and everyone who has ever bought a Bond or will buy a Bond is contributing to that miracle.

Many people offer excuses as to why they do not want to buy Bonds.

(a) They don't like Menachem Begin

It would be presumptuous to me to be an apologist for Begin, and impertinent of me to take on the task... because my children were not at Maalot or Munich; they do not sleep in a bomb shelter at Metullah or eventually go off to war with a machine-gun on their hip. I don't feel that I have a vote. But I can tell you that I think Israel is bigger and more important than the personality of any of its prime ministers... and that long after Begin has been replaced by other prime ministers, Israel will still be on the side of the Western world. We will never have to worry about arms and technology that we sell to Israel being used against us. We cannot say that about any other country in the Middle East.

(b) Internal bickering
I am told 'They are always shouting amongst themselves, and even the Israelis don't know what they want to do.' Perhaps we are not accustomed to what a real democracy is! Israel is a true democracy. I am reminded of a reported conversation between Chaim Weizmann and America's Harry Truman. Truman supposedly agreed that although Weizmann had a difficult job it was nothing like his... 'I am, after all, the president of two hundred million people,' said Truman. 'That's true, sir' replied Weizmann, 'but I am the president of six hundred and fifty thousand presidents.'

(c) Intransigence

How unfair that Israel be accused of being uncompromising. The only thing Israel is intransigent about is peace. They want peace. I have seen what has happened in Israel to a people living under constant tension and threat of annihilation; the creative things that they have been able to do. Imagine what they could do if those beautiful young people could be allowed to fulfill their human potential instead of constantly marching off to war. They are intransigent about peace, but not peace at ANY price. There is said to be a wonderful peace in the grave. This is not the peace the Israelis are going to pay. They will not sit at a bargaining table to negotiate with someone who says 'My goal is to destroy you.'

So, Begin, the divisions in Israel and Intransigence are not sufficient reasons for not buying Israel Bonds. There are far more creative reasons why you should.

ONE is because the projects Bonds finance are so imaginative. Bonds are NOT used for defence or to keep a political party in power. They are used to keep the country alive and vibrant... as evidenced by so many wonderful things already achieved.

BONDS are also a very important declaration against anti-semitism, the sensitive subject that everyone would prefer to ignore. I don't want to be an alarmist, but I also don't want to be an ostrich either. Jews who live in North American communities can live a life in which they are not aware of anti-semitism, even though it is growing and is stronger today than it has ever been.

After WW-II, when newsreels revealed the stories of the Holocaust, it was unfashionable to be anti-semitic. Now PLO propaganda, the stand of the United Nations, political and economic influences as well as the growing popularity of revisionists who are trying to rewrite history... make it fashionable to be anti-semitic. The revisionists are busy convincing people that the holocaust never happened... refer to the alleged holocaust and create an element of doubt that must not be permitted to grow.

Anti-semitism IS a fact... and don't think it couldn't happen here. A few years ago, when the Arabs were boycotting firms that had Israelis on their Boards as directors, our government put a piece of paper in the passports of people who wanted to do business with the Arabs, stating that they were non-Jews. It shouldn't have happened, but it did.

If anything happened to Israel... that wave of anti-semitism that has always been throughout the world would be unleashed, and every Jew, no matter how assimilated, would feel it. The anti-semitic does not care if you do not go to Temple; he does not care if you call yourself a Canadian-First; he doesn't care if you eat bacon... At Entebbe, when they said, 'We will let the non-Jews go'... they did not free the assimilated Jews... We all have a stake in Israel that what happened will never happen again.

I am not a Jew, but have for many years been investing some part of my savings every year in Israel Bonds... and I am doing so tonight. I am going to ask you, even if you have already bought a Bond, to make it a bigger Bond. You are doing it for yourself. You are buying a Bond because you believe in justice... because you believe what is happening in Israel and want to encourage it... because you want to take a stand against anti-semitism... and because you believe that Israel has the right to survive... If you have ever been to Israel, you will know that Israel has the right to survive. It has not been difficult for me to be a supporter of Israel...."

Support B'nai B'rith Blood Drive Oct. 26

By Leon Bronstein

In October, 1980, the Men's Lodges and Women's Chapters of B'nai B'rith of Ottawa held their first Blood Donor Clinic in the Ottawa Jewish Community. As an initial effort, collecting approximately 125 pints of blood, we can say it was successful. However, in terms of the potential of our community, there is much room for improvement.

Although B'nai B'rith is organizing the clinic, and notwithstanding the fact that the majority of donors last year were members of B'nai B'rith, the need for blood in Ottawa is worthy of participation by all members of the Jewish Community.

While we continuously respond to monetary solicitations to meet Jewish needs both at home and in Israel, the giving of our blood to help our fellow man is an opportunity we have overlooked. I am sure if, G-d forbid, Israel were desperately short of blood for whatever reason, we would be lining up to meet the need. Since we all consider ourselves both Jewish and Canadian, we should respond to the need for blood right here in Ottawa as well.

When soliciting support for "non-Jewish" organizations, we often respond by asking what the non-Jewish community gives to meet our needs. Well, when we need it, they give us their blood, no questions asked!

The B'nai B'rith Blood Drive will take place at the Jewish Community Centre, 151 Chapel St., on Monday, October 26, from 12 noon to 7:30 p.m. If you have not given blood within the last 3 months, are between 18 and 65 and healthy, you are an eligible donor. It only takes 15 minutes, and we guarantee no waiting.

There is free parking for donors at Rideau Chapel Towers across the street from the J.C.C. Free transportation will be provided to all those needing it, by calling 232-7306 during the hours of the Blood Drive.

For further information contact either Mera Goldstein at 729-4413 or Leon Bronstein at 224-4156.
